We don't serve alcohol at our teen parties!

As a Parent,

I am concerned about the high rate of underage drinking and its serious consequences. Though merchants are required to check identification of those purchasing alcohol to ensure they are twenty-one, teens in high school and younger report that the number one place to obtain alcohol is from their own parents, siblings, or parents of friends. Therefore, I am proud to join The Center for Prevention & Counseling's "We for 21, Too" campaign to prevent underage drinking.

I pledge to refrain from serving alcohol at any parties for my teenage children and their friends. I will also make sure to ask the parents of my children's friends to do the same.
